

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background of the Study

Child marriage is a violent of human rights whether it happens to a girl or a boy, but it represents perhaps the most prevalent form of sexual abuse and exploitation of girls. Pre-mature marriage establishes a high ideal at a period in life when habits are being formed. The harmful consequences include separation from family friends, lack of freedom to interact with peers and participate in community activities, and decreased opportunities for education.

Marriage before the age of eighteen may be considered as premature. As a rule, marriage between twenty and twenty-four years of age may be considered early, but not premature. Complete maturity is unquestionably essential to the use of the sex function, if the highest good of the race is to be attained. The children of adult parents are usually superior. Parents choose to marry off their daughters early for a number of reasons. Poor families may regard a young girl, as an economic burden in her marriage as a survival strategy for her family. They may think that pre-mature marriage offers protection for their daughter from the danger of sexual assault, or more generally offers the care of a male guardian.

We also meet this problem in the literary work. There are many literature works that tell about it. Literature work will express the social phenomenon that happens in the society. Wellek and Warren said, "Literature 'represent' 'life' and 'life' is large measure, a social reality, even though the natural world and the inner of subjective world of the individual have also been objects of literary 'imitation' " (Wellek and Warren 1956: 94).

There are some points of view or criticism to the social phenomenon. It may come from psychology, law enforcement, sociologist, and author. The most important element in the making of the literary work is author. The literary work will not exist without him. The author will express his idea through his works. He will express his feeling, idea, criticism, experience and social problems in his society based on the condition of society.

Lady Jane is one of film that tells about this social phenomenon. Trevor Nunn is the director, David Edgar is the writer, Christ Bryant is the writer of the story, and Peter Snell is the producer. Paramount Pictures distributed it. They serve a good film.

Lady Jane is a film first released in The United Kingdom on February 7, 1986. The genre film is drama and needs 142 minutes in duration. Lady Jane is played by Helena Bonham Carter, her husband Guilford Dudley by Cary Elwes. Jane is not happy with the proposed marriage at first, and has to be persuaded by her parents and King Edward. At first Jane and Guilford decide to treat this purely as a marriage of convenience, but then fall deeply in love.

Based on the explanation above, the writer is interested in observing reasons underlying pre-mature marriage practice of Jane. The writer proposed sociological to study about Jane's and her society and entitled this paper: Pre-Mature Marriage Practices in Trevor Nunn's Lady Jane: A Sociological Approach.
