

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

Chapter five is the last chapter of this research. Referring to the previous chapter which deals with the analysis of figurative language used in revelation bible in New Testament, finally the researcher can draw the conclusion and give the suggestion that hopefully will be useful for other researcher.

A. Conclusion

The conclusion is based on the problem statements of the previous chapter, which is what the type of figurative language and the implicature of figurative language used in Revelation Bible in New Testament. And it is elaborated as follows:

1. The writer finds 36 data of figurative language of revelation bible. The data are: 14 data in the type of figurative languages simile (38,9 %), 3 data in the type of figurative languages metaphor (8.3 %), 1 data in the type of figurative languages apostrophe (2.8 %), and also 1 data in the type of figurative languages paradox (2,8%), There are 3 data in the type of figurative languages synecdoche (8,3%), 5 data in the type of figurative languages hyperbole (13,9%) and there are 6 data in the type of figurative language symbol (16, 7 %). From the description above, the researcher can conclude that most of the data are in the type of figurative simile.

2. The implicature from 35 data in the figurative language used in revelation bible in New Testament. The researcher finds 5 data of commanding (13.9%), 19 data of reminding (55.5%), 1 data of promising (2.8 %), 8 data of threatening (22.2 %), 1 data of teasing (2.8%) and 1 data of suggesting (2.8 %). In addition, all of the data belongs to conversational implicature and none of them are in the kind of conventional implicature.

B. Suggestion

After completing the answers of the problems of the research of figurative language used in revelation bible in New Testament, the researcher gives some suggestion as follows:

1. For the students, especially taking the linguistics major, the researcher hopes that her study could give more information about the figurative language which used in revelation bible that is according to the Pragmatics perspective.
2. For the lecturers of linguistics major to give further understanding about the application of Pragmatics in conducting the research that relates to the figurative language and implicature.
3. For the further researchers who put their concern of study into pragmatics, this research can be used as previous study and to analyze the different object of the study, especially in analysis the implicature of figurative language.