The wolf in Sheep’s Clothing

A wolf found great difficulty in getting at the sheep owing to the vigilance of the shepherd and his dogs. But one day it found the skin of a sheep that had been flayed and thrown aside, so it put it on over its own pelt and strolled down among the sheep. The lamb that belonged to the sheep, whose skin the wolf was wearing, began to follow the wolf in the sheep’s clothing so, leading the lamb a little apart, he soon made a meal of her and for some time he succeeded in deceiving the sheep and enjoying hearty meal.

Calon Arang

Calon Arang was a widow of Girah who gave birth to a daughter in the jungle. Her daughter grew up to be the famed beauty Ratna Manggali. Calon arang wanted her daughter to marry a prince from Airlangga’s palace. However, no prince proposed along. Infuriated by this, Calon Arang learnt the art of black magic and practiced it against the kingdom, causing many people to die.

When the King Airlangga heard of the epidemic in Girah, he consulted his high priest, Mpu Baradah. The priest then sent his son to proposed ratna manggali. Calon Arang was pleased, the curse ended, and the couple wed.

Calon Arang inscribed her black magic secreton a lontar (palm leaf book). One day, her son in law found it and gave it to his father. When Calon Arang found what Mpu Baradah had learnt her secret, she was furious and declared war upon him. The priest had no choice but to fight and, in a deadly struggle, destroyed the widow by casting a spell. Before she died, Calon arang asked forgiveness. Mpu Baradah forgave her and showed her the way to heaven.

Queen Aji Bidara Putih

Muara kamang lies along the Mahakam River, in eastern Borneo. In the past the area was a kingdom ruled by Queen Aji Bidara Putih. She was a typical queen of myths; beautiful, wise, and sensitive. Many princess and kings proposed to her but she always refused them because she was more concerned with ruling her and guarding her people.

One day, a Chinese boat came to eastern Borneo. First, the people thought it was a merchant ship but the boat was loaded with trade goods and highly trained soldiers. Their envoys brought gold and porcelain to announce the marriage proposal from a prince China. The queen didn’t refuse instantly and replied that she had to ponder the proposal first. After the envoys left the palace, the queen called a court officer and ordered him to infiltrate the chinese boat to gather information on the prince.

When night fell the officer sneaked onto the boat, got all by guards, and finally found the prince’s room. The large door would not open and he could find a peek hole, so the officer put his ear to the wall, trying to catch sounds from inside. He heard that the prince was having his dinner and the noise of his chewing and slurping surprised the officer. It was like a boar that he had once heard when he was hunting.

He quickly left the boat and returned to the palace. He reported that the prince must have been a phantom, not a human. He believed that the phantom could be in a human’s form only during the daytime. The queen was so surprised and got angry. On the next day, she refused his proposal.

The enraged prince ordered his troops to raid Muara Kaman. The battle was won by the prince’s huge band. As they drew near to the palace, queen Aji Bidara Putih chewed a leaf of betel vine and sang a mantra while holding it. When she threw it at the Chinese troops, it turned to giant centipedes. The Chinese troops started to retreat but three centipedes chased them and sank the boat. The site of the sunken ship is now known as Danau Lipan (Lake of Centipedes), with Chinese treasures hidden on the lake’s bed.

MALIN KUNDANG

Long time ago, in a small village near the beach of Sumatra, lived a woman and her son, Malin Kundang. Malin Kundang’s father had passed away when he was a baby and he had to live hard with his mother. Malin Kundang was a healthy, diligent, and strong child. He usually went to the sea to catch fish, and brought it to his mother, or sold it to the town.

One day, when Malin Kundang was sailing as usual, he saw a merchant’s ship which was being raided by a small band of pirates. With his brave and power, Malin Kundang defeated the pirates. The merchant was so happy and asked Malin Kundang to sail with him. Malin Kundang agreed.

Many years later, Malin Kundang became a wealthy merchant, with a huge ship, loads of trading goods, many ship crews, and a beautiful wife. In his journey, his ship landed on a beach. The villagers recognized him, and the news ran fast in the town: Malin Kundang became a rich man and he is here. His mother, in deep sadness after years of loneliness, ran to the beach to meet his beloved son again.

When the mother came, Malin Kundang in front of his well dressed wife, his crews, and his own glories, denied to meet the old, poor, and dirty woman. For three times she begged Malin Kundang and for three times he yelled at him. At last Malin Kundang said to her, “Enough, old woman! I have never had a mother like you, a dirty and ugly peasant!” then he ordered his crews to set sail.

Enraged, she cursed Malin Kundang that he would turn into a stone if he didn’t apologize. Malin Kundang just laughed and set sail. In the quiet sea, suddenly a thunderstorm came. His huge ship was wrecked and it was too late for Malin Kundang to apologize. He was thrown by the wave out of his ship, fell on a small island, and suddenly turned into stone.

PRINCESS LORO JONGGRANG

Once, there was a beautiful Javanese princes whose name was Roro Jonggrang. Roro Jonggrang whose beauty was very famous in the land was the daughter of Prabu Baka, an evil king.

One day, a handsome young man with supernatural power, named Bandung Bondowoso, defeated and killed Prabu Baka. On seeing Princess Roro Jonggrang’s beauty, Bandung Bondowoso fell in love and wanted to marry her.

Meanwhile, Princess Roro Jonggrang felt sad due to the death of her father. She did not want to marry Bandung because he had killed her father. But she was also afraid of Bandung. So to refuse politely, she made a condition. “I will marry you but you have to build one thousand temples in one night as a wedding gift” requesting roro Jonggrang. Bandung agreed with this condition.

Helped by the spirit of demons, Bandung Bondowoso started building the temple. Approaching midnight, the work was nearly done. Roro Jonggrang knew and thought, “What shall I do? Bandung is smarter than me. I will lost against Bandung.”

Suddenly, she got an idea. She woke up all the women in the palace and ordered them to make the noisy sounds of grinding rice so that the monsters would think it had already dawn.

Bandung Bondowoso got frustrated because he failed to complete the thousand temple. “The princess has deceived me!” Following his anger, he cursed Roro Jonggrang. “You have cheated me. Now, the thousand temple is you!”

At once, the princess turned into a statue. Knowing this, Bandung Bondowoso regretted this and he went away into a far land. From then, people called the temple Prambanan Temple and the statue of princess, Roro Jonggrang Statue.

The farmer and the donkey

A farmer was going to the market with his son to sell a donkey. He was very anxious to keep the creature in good condition. He wished to get a good amount from the buyers. So he loaded the animal into a cart and drew it along the road. Some passerby noticed this.

They shouted in loud voices so the farmer could hear, “See, what a funny sight, instead of riding the donkey, he is giving it a ride. Have you seen anything like this?” The farmer paused for a while and thought. He then took the donkey out of the cart and clambered it on its back. His son was walking behind him. On the way he heard women talking, “look at the strong man, he is riding the donkey and his poor son is made to walk.” The farmer took a shelter for a second time.

This time he made his son on the donkey, while he tugged along on foot. “Oh, what a shame?” said some passerby. “The son rides the donkey while the poor old man has to walk.” Then he decided that both of them should ride on the donkey’s back. A few minutes later came across some young man. One of them told the farmer, “Shame on you! Have pity on the poor creature. He is tired of carrying such a heavy load.”

At this time the farmer lost his patience. He shouted, “I’m not going to listen to anyone anymore, I’ll do according to myself.”

The Tyrant Who Became Just Ruler

In the olden times, there was a king who was so cruel and unjust toward his subjects that he was always called The Tyrant. So heartless was he that his people used to pray night and day that they might have a new king.
One day, much to their surprise, he called his people together and said to them, "My dear subjects, the days of my tyranny are over. Henceforth, you shall live in peace and happiness, for I have decided to try my rule henceforth justly and well."

The King kept his words so well that soon he was known throughout the land as The Just King. One of his favorites came to him said, “Your Majesty, I beg you to tell me how it was that you had this change of heart towards your people.”

The King replied, “As I was galloping trough the forest one afternoon, I caught sight of a hound chasing a fox. The fox escaped into his hole, but not until he had bitten by the dog so badly that he would be lame for life. The hound, returning home, met a man who threw a stone at him, which broke his leg. And the hound starting to run, fell into a hole and broke his leg. Here I came to my senses, and resolved to change my rule. ‘For surely,’ I said to myself, ‘He who does evil will sooner or later be overtaken by evil.’

The Golden Touch
By John Warren Stewig

Once upon time there lived a king. He was fond of gold than anything, except for his daughter, Marygold. He spent most of his time in the dungeon beneath the castle, examing his all his treasures.

One day, Midas looked up and saw a stranger. The stranger gazed around. “I doubt whether any four walls contain as much gold as ypu have here”

“I have done pretty well.’ Midas agrred. “But this is merely a small portion of the world’s gold.”

“What!” exclaimed the stranger, “Then you are not content? What would satisfy you?”

Said Midas,”I wish that everything I touch might turn gold.”
“Be it as you wish,” agreed the stranger. “Tomorrow you will get the golden touch.”

The next morning when he touched the robe he wanted to wear, it changed into gold, the door, the knob, the robe, and the bedpost.

Meanwhile, the maid summoned the king for breakfast. As Midas wanted to pour himself coffee, the pot changed into gold. He lifted the cup. The instant his lips touched the cup, it hardened to a lump.

Marygold came to comfort him. Midas bent down to kiss his daughter. The moment his lips touched Marygold’s forehead, her face became glittering yellow. Seeing this, he roared.

To his surprise, he saw the stranger standing near the door.

“So, you have made a discovery,” observed the stranger. “Which is more value; the golden touch or your own loving daughter?”

“Oh my child” answered Midas.

“You are wiser now,” said the stranger. ” Do you wish to rid yourself of the Goden touch?” “Go and plunge into the river. Take a vase of the water and sprinkle it over any object you had changed into its former condition.”

The king hastened to the river. He dipped the pitcher into the water. He rushed to the palace and poured the water over Marygold. She began to sputter, she remember nothing.

For as long as King Midas lived, he would declare,”Ever since that morning, I can not stand the sight of gold.”

Why do Hawks hunt Chick?

Once upon a time, a hawk fell in love with a hen. The hawk flew from the sky and asked the hen, “Will you marry me?”

The hen loved the brave, strong hawk and wished to marry him, but she said, I can not fly as high as you can. If you give me time, I may learn to fly as high as you. Then we can fly together.”

The hawk agreed. Before he went away, he gave the hen a ring. “This is to show that you have promised to marry me,” said the hawk.

It so happened that the hen had already promised to marry a rooster. So, when the rooster saw the ring, he became very angry. “Throw that ring away at once!” shouted the rooster. The hen was so frightened at the rooster anger that she threw away ring immediately.

When the hawk came a few months later, the hen told him the truth. The hawk was so furious that he cursed the hen, “Why don’t you tell me earlier? Now, you will always be scratching the earth, and I’ll always be flying above to catch your children,” said the hawk.

The Little Red Hen

Once upon a time, there was a red Hen lived in a farm with her children. She also lived with the other neighbors, the Goose and the Duck.
One day, she found a grain of wheat. So she asked her neighbors, the Goose and the Duck. ‘Who will plant this wheat?’ And no one wanted to plant the wheat. So she planted the grain of wheat herself.

When the wheat was ripe she said, “Who will take this wheat to the mill?” And again no one wanted to do it. So she took the wheat to the mill.

When she brought the flour home she said, “Who will make some bread with this flour?” And as she predicted, no one would like to do it.

When the bread was baked, she said, “Who will eat this bread?” This time it was different. They said, “I will, I will.”

“No, you won’t,” said the hen. “I shall eat it myself. Cluck! Cluck!” And she called her chickens to eat together.

Finders Keepers

One day, a bear, Bon the Bear was traveling with his two friends through a forest. Suddenly, he noticed that his friends were no longer around. He looked for them ahead and behind, but he did not see them. He cried out at them.

“Tom….! Jack! Where are you?” but he didn’t hear an answer.

Then he became very frightened. You know, he was carrying a large sum of money.

“What shall I do?” he said to himself.

“I’m not strong enough to fight to protect it, someone would take this money from me easily.”

Poor bear………. alone and nervous. Then he sheltered under a shady tree.
When he was sitting, he saw an opening in the ground on the side of the path. You know……..he went over to it, bent down and looked in.

“Oh, it is empty. Maybe it is a storage place for grain”, he said.

He also noticed a clearing nearby, in which there was a small field with young plants growing in rows.

“Ah……why don’t I put money in this storage hole?” said Bon the Bear to himself.

“The owner will probably not use it for several months, until the crops are ready to harvest. Yeah….. it will be safer here than with me. And I will come back for it later.

He looked around to see whether anyone was watching him. Then he put the money in the dark corner of the storage hole and went on his way.

However someone saw him, he was the owner of the land himself, Tory the farmer. He was sleeping under the bush nearby. He woke up when Ben was looking around to see who might be watching. It made Tory suspicious. So, as soon as Ben left, he went over to investigate. Sure enough, he found a bag of money.

Look! He picked it up immediately and took it with him. He thought that whatever someone left in his property was his.

Bon the Bear returned a few days later and, of course, could not find his money. He wondered what had happened. He was sure that no one had used that storage place since he had been there.

Bon the Bear quickly returned to the city and asked permission to plead to the Wise King for advice in the matter. He was allowed to come before the Wise King. Sadly….Ben told his story.

“And so My lord, I don’t know who took my money or how. It’s so mysterious for me.”

The Wise King answered, “Well…..go and find the owner of the place. Perhaps he was the one who took your money.”

But, sire, I can’t simply accuse the man, can’ I?” asked Bon the Bear.

“No, you can’t. However, you can put him for a test.”

“How?” asked Bon the Bear eagerly.
Tell him that you had a large sum of money that you want to keep in a safe place. Tell him that you had already buried some of it in a storage place on his property. Then asked him if he thinks you should bury the money, he will surely tell you to put the rest there. But he’ll quickly replace the money he took so that you will not discover that is has gone. Then you can go and get your money back.”

Bon the Bear did just as the King had advised. He found the owner, Tory the Farmer and spoke to him as the King has suggested.

“By all means, put the money you have now in the same place,” said Tory the Farmer.

“That is a good place. I won’t use it for anything until next fall. And, as I’m sure you noticed, that hole is very obscure, I have never lost anything I have stored there. Your money will be safe.”

‘I hope you are right,’ replied Bon the Bear.

“Oh I know I am,” said Tory, with brightened eyes.

“But first, please accept an invitation for the night. I would be honored if you would stay with me.’

Bon accepted. And after enjoying a meal with the farmer, Bon went to bed.

You know……in the night Tory went out to the storage place to replace Bon’ money. He said to himself, “Surely if he does not find the first amount, he will not leave the second.”

The next morning Bon the Bear got up early in the morning. And after a good breakfast at Tory’s table, he went to the storage hole, took his money, and went on his way.
