BAB I
INTRODUCTION

A. Background of the Study

English language has an important role in educational world, especially in Indonesia. It could be seen that English has been learnt in some level of education. For instance, in Indonesia, this language has been taught from kindergarten level to university level. It says that English is learnt for all level of education in Indonesia.

However, every language has its own rules and uniqueness, English does too. English has four basic language skills. They are listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Speaking and writing involve language production, so they are regarded as productive skills. On the other hand, listening and reading involve receiving message, so they are regarded as receptive skills. As one of four language skills, writing has always occupied a place in most English language course (Fauziati: 2010:45). In writing a sentence or a text, the students have to focus on the rules of writing such as topic of paragraph, body of paragraph, spelling, conclusions of paragraph and so on.

In teaching classroom, method and technique are different. As Anthony (1963: 95) in Fauziati (2014: 12) stated method as “an overall plan for the orderly presentation of language material, no part of which contradicts, and all of which is based upon the selected approach. An approach is axiomatic whereas a method is procedural”. While technique is implementation which actually take place in a classroom. It is a particular trick, strategy, or contrivance used to accomplish an immediate objective. Technique must be consistent with a method, and therefore in harmony with an approach as well” (Anthony (1963: 96) in Fauziati (2014: 13)

In teaching writing has classroom technique. While classroom technique is similar with classroom activities. According to Fauziati (2010: 51) stated “writing as process is oriented towards work in progress and the development of new skills, rather than merely evaluative tasks, the classroom practices vary from each other; these often depends much upon the students’ experiences and skills when planning and adjusting their writing program. Some characteristics of classroom activities are as follows: a) instruction should be focused on the writing process, b) the assigned writing tasks should encourage students to write a variety of modes besides expository writing, c) conferencing is an important part of the classroom activity, d) the main role of the teacher is as a facilitator, e) students would work and help each other rather than work alone (work in pair or groups), f) a bond which ties all members of the class into one community.

Robert (2009) stated that writing is an efficient learning process which is utilized to communicate information, clarify thinking, and learn new concept and information. Ulquhart and Meler (2005) states “writing is a recursive process. Students should learns strategies for invention and discovery”. It is generally agreed that writing is the most difficult skill to master for foreign language leaners. This is due not only to the need generate and organize ideas using an appropriate choice of vocabulary, sentence, and paragraph organization but also to turn such ideas into a readable text (Richards and Renandya, 2002) in Fauziati (2010: 45).

According to Fauziati (2010: 196) success in language teaching, in relation to both students learning and teacher efficiency, can often be traced to the ability of teachers to manage the classroom. “Success in language teaching depends less on materials, techniques, and linguistic analysis, and more on what gies on inside and between people in the classroom” Stevick (1980: 4) in Fauziati (2010: 196). From those problem, now the teachers are demanded to create some strategies which can explore the students’ writing competence.

There are some components of writing such as: a) structures of language, b) grammar, c) process, d) modes and genres, e) traits, f) assessment. In fact, writing is a lot more than just using accurate grammar and choosing appropriate vocabulary. Writing accurately is, of course, important, but there are a lot of other aspects to consider as follows: a) functional phrases, b) tone, c) clarity and style, d) cohesion, e) organisation, f) punctuation, g) capitalization, h) spelling.

Based on the observation in SMP Muhammadiyah 1 Surakarta, the teacher usually use invention technique such as: free writing, brainstorming and listing).
The activities which is performed by the teacher for the students in writing skill such as: 1) Arrange the random sentence (Students do the task which is given by the teacher which contained the random sentence and arrange it to the correct sentences), 2) Fill in the blank in the sentence (Students do the task which is given by the teacher which contained fill in the blank sentence), 3) Write the genre and functional text (Students write the genre and functional text according to the material which given by the teacher)

From the observation above, these activities is believed by the teacher can develop the students’ writing skill. The technique of writing which is usually used by teacher for students are: first, make an outline, write the first draft, then edit and proofread (self-correction, peer correction), and the last write the final draft. The classroom technique which is used by teacher above is good and appropriate, but not develop yet the readability and the abilities of students’ writing skill. This reasearch especially dealing with classroom technique to develop students’ English writing skill with naturalistic study.
