CHAPTER I
INTRODUCTION

A. Background of the Study

This is globalization era. A globalization influences the people to interact with others by using many kinds of mass media. There are two kinds of mass media (electronic media and printed media). By using mass media, the researcher can communicate easily with another people. For example: the researcher can find a news, advertisement, entertainment. There are many kinds of advertisement, for example: product advertisement, show advertisement, business advertisement.

Job vacancy is a part of business advertisement. It is made for the interaction between the producer and consumer. Producer is the job’s supplier and consumer is the reader who is interested to the job. Beside that, the job’s supplier persuades the reader to make an applicant letter as a response of their interest.

_JogloSemar_ is an example of printed media (newspaper) which is published in Central Java (Jogjakarta, Solo, Semarang). It consists of everything information in Central Java (Jogjakarta, Solo, Semarang). The information can be news, advertisement and entertainment. The model of text which serves information in the newspaper is an example of discourse.

This newspaper shows the various of discourse. The researcher finds many information of discourse which interests in this newspaper, for example job vacancy below:
There are elements of discourse on the job vacancy above when the researcher sees that, such as: addresser, addressee, topic, setting, channel, code, message, speech event (elements of discourse) and topic, theme, rheme (text structure). So, when the reader reads the job vacancy is not only reads but also can understand the elements of discourse and the text structure on that job vacancy at once. In addition, job vacancy is the most interesting object to the researcher. It is so the correlation between discourse and language which will be observed as a research.

“Discourse and language are two items which cannot be separated, because a discourse is the largest form of language”. Both of them are the important aspects in communication. By knowing the discourse, the researcher can interpret a language use in order to understand the meaning in a discourse. This is called discourse (Stubbs in Jarowski and Coupland, 1999: 1).

“Discourse is more than just language use; it is language use, whether speech or writing, seen as a type of social practice” (Fairclough in Jarowski and Coupland, 1999: 2) In this sense, discourse is a means of talking and writing about and acting upon worlds the main external cause of language change. We speak discourse, so it will correlate to context. Goody (1977: 76) in Brown and Yule translated by Sutikno (1996: 13) stated that the written form of language has two functions: storage function which possible to create communication without depend on the same time and place, possible to move language from utterance to visual and perhaps the words, sentences, that will be observed out of context because of their abstraction.

These reasons above causes the writer is interested to make a research. The title of our research is A Discourse Analysis of Job Vacancy in JogloSemar News paper.

B. Previous Study
There are many studies about discourse analysis. First Discourse Analysis of The Commercial Advertisement Text in Hotel Brochures (Pragmatics Approach) Written by Suripto (UMS, 2004). The research is about Discourse Analysis of hotel Brochures. Suripto’s research used the commercial advertisement text in hotel brochures as the data analysis and analyzed pragmatics meaning (locution, Illocution, and per locution meaning) as the result.

Second, A Discourse Analysis of “Your letter” in the Jakarta Post News paper written by Purnamasari (UMS, 2002). Purnamasari’s research has Jakarta Post as the data analyzed. She used components in the making letter to analyze them. The result of her research shows that 1) the most configurations that the researcher found in those letter are: subject line, body of letter, and the sender, 2) the most deixis that used in discourse “Your Letter” in the Jakarta Pos are; personal deixis, place deixis, time deixis, and discourse deixis.

Third, An Analysis of Narrative Discourse of the Language Used Indifferent and Different Fish Column of Kangguru Magazine written by Kuswandari (UMS, 2003). She explained and focused on discourse and the linguistics element especially in cohesion and coherence in Kangguru Magazine. The result of her research are: 1) there are narrative structure in this story, they have character, setting, theme, point of view, plot, 2) there are two linguistics element in the story. They are cohesion and coherence.

Finally from the previous researchers above, the researcher expects to make a research which is based on the previous study. This research is related to Purnamasari’s research. It is seen from the researcher: use of text structure and the elements which configuring of discourse, but this research uses job vacancy as the object to be analyzed. Moreover the finding of this result will be focused on context and the theme-rheme of discourse in job vacancy as a advertisement. That is distinguish this research with Purnamasari’s research.
